

ŌTOROHANGA COLLEGE WEEKLY HIGHLIGHTS

Term Four, Week Four- Monday 4th November - Friday 8th November 2024

MAMMA MIA

Two of our rangatahi Alexander Court and Kanohi-Marama Martin are involved in the highly popular Mamma Mia stage production in Te Kuiti. The iconic Dancing Queen ringing through the air and the calming blue of the Mediterranean Sea have set the stage for an exciting production.

The pair are part of a large crew and have been rehearsing at On-Stage Te Kuiti for the last three months. Alex has enjoyed meeting new people and has developed lifelong friendships through the experience. Kanohi-Marama has enjoyed being on stage and looks forward to the opening night, Friday 9th November. We wish them and the crew all the best.

SCIENCE FACULTY

As our Senior Science students are immersed in NCEA study and Exams, we farewell our amazing Level 3 Science students as they embark on the next life stage. As a Faculty we thank them for their dedication to both work and the fun over the last five years. The winner of the Science Cup - Henry Murchie with his ability to build and fix anything will be missed, explosions not so much.

The Let It Grow Module are enjoying a look at Rongoā, traditional Māori medicine. Jasmine Downs-Bryant models the use of flax to secure broken bones. Students have also made Kawakawa oil and used the oil to make balm and lip balm. We have also been enjoying the vegetables the garden is providing us.

The Agventure Module has been investigating some different uses of milk relating to the properties of milk. So far we have made and eaten butter, ice cream, yoghurt and labneh.

Labneh
Mark

Four ways you can eat labneh, you can eat labneh in several ways you could spread it on pita or flatbread for a quick little snack or dip veggies like cucumbers or carrots into it.

Labneh is a thick yogurt cheese from the Middle East. It's made by straining yogurt to make it creamy. You can dip bread or veggies in it, use it in salads, or eat it with olive oil. It is tasty and it's pretty easy to use in different meals.
